Assemblymember Steck is FIGHTING FOR REAL ETHICS REFORM

“New Yorkers deserve to have an honest and transparent government that works for them and only them. I’m pushing far-reaching ethic reforms that ensure accountability every step of the way.”

— Phil Steck

Assemblymember Steck passed legislation approved by voters to strip taxpayer-funded pensions from corrupt public officials. Now, he’s pushing for more reform.

INCREASING TRANSPARENCY

Steck helped pass a resolution requiring legislators to disclose their outside income to ensure a conflict of interest doesn’t exist (C.25 of 2017).

He helped pass a budget that expands the definition of political communications to include paid internet and digital ads and requires that all independent expenditures include a “paid for by” statement followed by the name of the committee that paid for it (Ch. 59 of 2018).

He helped pass legislation to close the LLC loophole to limit the influence of big-money special interests in our elections (A.9758 of 2018).

PROTECTING WHISTLEBLOWERS

Steck authored legislation that passed the Assembly to make it easier for citizens to come forward with claims of corporate and government wrongdoing (A.2565 of 2018).

He also co-sponsored a bill to protect employees from retaliation if they speak up against their employer for bribing public officials (A.2156 of 2018).

FIGHTING SEXUAL HARASSMENT

Steck helped pass the state budget, which includes measures to:

- Establish a model sexual harassment prevention policy and require employers to adopt that policy and train their employees annually.
- Prohibit sexual harassment, provide information on state and federal law and relief available to victims, ensure timely and confidential investigations of complaints and clearly establish that retaliation is unlawful.
- Bar confidentiality clauses – except at the request of the victim – and mandatory arbitration agreements for sexual harassment claims.
