

will give Schenectady families
peace of mind

“As the father of a son with autism, one of my biggest fears is that he could find himself in an emergency situation and is not able to communicate basic information to get back home, like who he is and where he lives.”

How does it work?

Take Me Home is a lifesaving resource now available at NO COST for families affected by autism, or other disabilities that may impair communication skills, including seniors living with Alzheimer's.

- A parent or guardian registers an individual in advance with local police.
- This information becomes quickly and easily accessible to police officers if the individual goes missing or is lost.

Enrollment is easy, and it's FREE!

To register a family member for Take Me Home, download and complete the application from www.cityofschenectady.com/334/Police-Department, then return it to the Schenectady Police Department with a recent photograph. Applications can also be emailed to takemehome@schenectadypd.org.

“Partnering with the Schenectady Police Department, we can now provide a mechanism for the safe return home of people who may have trouble communicating with law enforcement and first responders.”
