New York State provides a wide variety of educational choice for parents. New York's students may attend traditional public schools, private schools, charter schools, state supported and operated schools such as 4410s, 853s, and Special Act School Districts or may be home schooled. No matter what type of school a student attends, it is imperative that every student be given the opportunity to succeed in a safe, supportive environment. The Assembly Standing Committee on Education is conducting a roundtable to examine the financial, programmatic, health, safety, accountability and transparency measures private schools are taking to ensure that all of their students receive a sound, basic education.

Participants will be invited to discuss and examine the fiscal, programmatic, health, safety, accountability and transparency measures as it relates to private schools. Among the topics that will be discussed include academic standards in private schools, as well as health and safety measures.

In order to meet the needs of those who may have a disability, the Assembly, in accordance with its policy of non-discrimination on the basis of disability, as well as the 1990 Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA), has made its facilities and services available to all individuals with disabilities. For individuals with disabilities, accommodations will be provided, upon reasonable request, to afford such individuals access and admission to Assembly facilities and activities.
