KEITH P. BROWN

New York state Assemblyman Keith P.

Brown (R,C-Northport) was in attendance at Gov. Hochul's State of the State Address. "It was a gratifying experience to reconvene in person without donning masks. It was refreshing to "put a face to the name" and to engage in meaningful discourse concerning the governance of New York State."

State of the State AddressI was recently published in Newsday on March 3, 2023, expressing my

Governor Hochul

disagreement with Gov. Hochul's New York Housing Compact Plan. The governor's heavy-handed, top-down policies undermine our local communities' sovereignty while simultaneously puts our natural environment at risk by removing SEQRA review that every other development project is required to undergo. My essay expressed how Gov. Hochul's housing plan should take a gentler, incentivized approach so the plan itself can be better embraced by communities on Long Island. Furthermore, the governor's proposal to increase taxes on the MTA needs to be change with its inability to operate efficiently and lack of transparency. It is unacceptable for our government to continue to bail out the MTA and invest huge amounts of taxpayers dollars into a public authority that has not been able to show a return on investment. Instead, we need innovative, long-term solutions to tackle the root causes of the spending holes and mismanagement of the MTA/LIRR. Lastly, the governor's initiatives to combat climate change are not well revised. The MTA requires significant thought out. These policies fail to consider the cost/benefit analysis of their implementation, or including the stepping stones necessary to reach the stated goals of a carbon-free economy. We must take a principled stance against Gov. Hochul's misguided policies and work toward a more effective and sustainable approach to governance that is both responsive to the needs of our citizens and respectful of local autonomy.
