

Rebecca Seawright

Dear Friends and Neighbors,

I am proud to have called on the New York State Education Department for $7 million in funding for students with disabilities at a news conference this week. Over 75,000 students with disabilities are pursuing higher education in New York State. Institutions of higher education should be accessible of opportunity and experiences in the classroom to learners of all backgrounds. With increased funding, we aim to make those opportunities a reality.

In case you missed it, this week we hosted a Ranked Choice Voting Town Hall Tuesday which can be viewed on YouTube or Facebook. Our next Town Hall Tuesday will be a Senior Seminar featuring an expert on estate planning and a representative from the IRS Office of the Taxpayer Advocate.

Join us for one of the events that I am pleased to sponsor:

with the lifeblood of our City's workforce! Together, we are taking steps to ensure that higher education is accessible to the greatest extent possible by all students with disabilities," said Assembly Member Rebecca Seawright.
