Dear Friends and Neighbors,

On March 8, we celebrated International Women's Day. I am proud to sponsor legislation adding the Equal Rights Amendment to the New York State Constitution! Women belong in both the Federal and New York State constitutions. Four generations of women joined me on Thursday as a call to action to make the ERA a reality at a press conference in front of our community office. Attendees, young and old, had one thing in common: they want to see equal rights for all in their lifetime.

Today, I was honored to be featured on a panel with women leaders at Eleanor Roosevelt High School. I shared my first experiences getting involved in politics when my 4-H leader was discriminated against for her age, and being an activist to ensure that women have a seat at the table, even if they need to bring a folding chair!

Join us on Tuesday, March 23 at 7 pm to honor Women of Distinction from our community on Zoom and Facebook live. We look forward to the celebration of women and their achievements in their respective fields.

Join us for one of the events that I am pleased to sponsor:

Assembly Member Seawright and Four Generations of Women Mark Women's History Month With Call for Swift Passage of Equal Rights Amendment

On the occasion of Women's History Month, Seawright joined with four generations of women to call for the passage of the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA).

In March, we celebrate women's social, economic, cultural, and political achievements during Women's History Month, and now, more than ever, we need to push for the passage of an Equal Rights Amendment to our New York State Constitution. Betty Cooper Wallerstein, President of the East 79 Street Neighborhood Association, Margaret "Peggy" Price, Co-Chair of Manhattan Community Board 8 Committee on Women and Families, and Brearley Student Gabrielle Ross joined the press conference as a call to action for the Assembly to pass the Equal Rights Amendment.

The ERA would prohibit discrimination based on gender and would also guard against rollbacks of women's rights in health, employment, domestic violence, and education.

Betty Cooper Wallerstein thanked ERA Sponsor in the US House, Congresswoman Carolyn Maloney, and ERA Sponsor in the State Assembly, Assembly Member Rebecca Seawright for championing equal rights for women.

Seawright intern and constituent Gabrielle Ross said, "It is such an experience to marvel at everything that we women have accomplished, and to imagine what wonderful things we will all do in the future. This feeling is only accentuated by being surrounded by generations of women with such fulfilling lives. Being only a teenager, this gives me a great ambition to continue achieving more."

Small Business Spotlight

Ryan's Daughter

When first opened in 1979, Ryan's Daughter announced herself as a "New Pub on an Old Spot". There had been a bar at 350 East 85th Street since the Prohibition Era. During that time, it operated not so much as a speakeasy or gin-joint, but a local club. Official licensing came in the late 1930's, as the "Old Stream." This German-owned watering hole catered to the residents of Yorkville until the mid-1970's. Then, in 1974, the Irish moved in. The "Old Stream" became the "Minstrel Boy," founded by an Irish-born, retired NYPD officer. The handle changed, but the regulars still sat in their same stools and kept up their old traditions. The tight-knit, community bar, continued on much the same as it had been. Then, in 1979, Ryan's Daughter was born. The new owners gave her a major facelift as well as a second bar on the upper floor. She turned a few heads, as the 1980's brought new faces to old places on the Upper East Side. The crowd came in and rubbed shoulders with the old-timers. Ryan's Daughter charmed many of them with her friendliness to all. And so they stayed on, becoming familiar faces themselves. They had found a home here next to those whose bar stools had become a birthright.

Today, almost four decades later, she still stands in the heart of historic Yorkville. Ryan's Daughter is a proud member of this ever-changing community. All grown up, she has held on to the charms of her younger days and picked up a bit of wisdom. Even a new face will feel at home when given the good service that long-time regulars have come to expect. In this way, Ryan's Daughter serves as a connection back to the tavern culture of bygone days.

Stop by 350 East 85 Street, between First and Second Avenue.
