ASSEMBLYMEMBER

Dear Friends and Neighbors,

Happy Hanukkah to all who celebrate. May this Festival of Lights bring peace, joy, and warmth to you and your loved ones.

This week, I joined U.S. Senator Kirsten Gillibrand and senior advocates to highlight the alarming surge in financial scams targeting older adults during the holiday season. Seniors across the country lost more than $4.8 billion last year, including over $203 million in New York State alone—an average of $23,200 every hour. As Chair of the Assembly Committee on Aging, I emphasized the urgent need for stronger fraud-prevention tools and coordinated action. I am proud to support legislation empowering bank tellers to intervene when suspicious transactions occur and applaud Senator Gillibrand's National Strategy for Combating Scams Act. I urge everyone to remain vigilant and to protect your personal information during this heightened season of risk.

In education news, I toured Clarke Schools for Hearing and Speech, a vital early childhood program serving infants through five-year-olds who are deaf or hard of hearing. I was inspired by the extraordinary work of Clarke's educators, therapists, and specialists, who provide life-changing early intervention services that help children build communication skills and thrive in mainstream environments. As neighbors, we are fortunate to have such a remarkable institution in our community.

It was a joy to celebrate with neighbors at our holiday open house and hear all of the legislative and community wishes for the coming year. Thank you to those who brought in a toy for a successful toy drive to make a child's holiday bright.

As always, my office is here to assist you.

Assembly Member Seawright Joins Senator Gillibrand to Protect Seniors from Holiday Scams

As financial scams spike during the holiday season, the Office of Assembly Member Rebecca A. Seawright joined U.S. Senator Kirsten Gillibrand and senior advocates to sound the alarm about the rise in fraud targeting older adults. According to the FBI, seniors across the country lost more than $4.8 billion last year, with losses in New York State exceeding $203 million—an average of $23,200 every hour.

Senator Gillibrand highlighted her bipartisan National Strategy for Combating Scams Act, which would require the FBI to lead a coordinated national response to combat increasingly sophisticated scams, including those using AI-generated voices, deepfakes, and other emerging technologies.

Assembly Member Seawright, Chair of the Assembly Committee on Aging, underscored the urgency of action and the need for vigilance: “As we enter the holiday season, attempted scams will surge—and we need to make sure scammers end up exactly where they belong: on the naughty list. Elder financial exploitation is a global epidemic robbing older adults of their hard-earned savings. In New York, I’m proud to sponsor legislation empowering bank tellers to halt suspicious transactions, and I applaud Senator Gillibrand’s National Strategy for Combating Scams Act, which will finally bring the multi-agency coordination we urgently need. Last year alone, older New Yorkers lost more than $203 million to scams—about $23,200 every hour. This is shocking and absolutely unacceptable. I urge everyone to remain vigilant: Stop. Think. Delete. Report. And above all—Educate.” — Assembly Member Rebecca A. Seawright, Chair of the Assembly Committee on Aging

The Office of Assembly Member Seawright encourages all New Yorkers to stay alert for suspicious calls, texts, emails, and unexpected requests for money or personal information during the holiday season and throughout the year.

Assembly Member Seawright Visits Clarke Schools for Hearing and Speech

Assembly Member Rebecca A. Seawright visited Clarke Schools for Hearing and Speech on December 10 to tour their early childhood program and meet with educators, specialists, and families. Clarke, located just around the corner from the Assembly Member's district office, serves infants through five-year-olds who are deaf or hard of hearing and supports them in developing listening and spoken-language skills.

During the visit, Assembly Member Seawright had the opportunity to see classrooms in action, observe speech and auditory therapy sessions, and learn more about Clarke's innovative approach to empowering young learners. Staff shared how early intervention and specialized instruction help children build confidence, communication skills, and readiness for mainstream educational settings.

"As neighbors and community partners, Clarke Schools plays a transformative role in giving our youngest New Yorkers the tools they need to thrive," said Assembly Member Seawright. "I was inspired by the dedication of the educators and the remarkable progress of the children. Their work reflects the very best of early childhood education, inclusion, and support for families."

Real Property Tax Exemptions for New York Seniors

Legislation supported by Assembly Member Rebecca Seawright has been signed (S5175A/A3698A), expanding real property tax exemptions for senior homeowners across New York State. The new law allows localities to provide a property tax exemption of up to 65 percent of a home's assessed value for eligible seniors—an increase from the long-standing 50 percent cap that had not been updated in decades.

This measure strengthens the Governor's broader affordability agenda and offers meaningful relief at a time when rising costs pose challenges for seniors living on fixed incomes. For many older New Yorkers, this enhanced exemption can result in savings of up to $300 annually, helping them remain in the homes and communities they cherish.

Assembly Member Rebecca A. Seawright, Chair of the Assembly Committee on Aging, praised the legislation, stating: "This long-awaited expansion of the senior property tax exemption is a victory for older New Yorkers who simply want to age in place with dignity and financial security. As Chair of the Aging Committee, I applaud Governor Hochul and my colleagues in the legislature for advancing real, practical relief that will help seniors stay in the communities they helped build."

Prohibiting Cashless Stores Law

Businesses that refuse to accept cash create an inconvenience for consumers and leave vulnerable New Yorkers behind. That's why Assembly Member Seawright helped pass a new law prohibiting food stores and retail establishments from refusing to accept payment in cash (Ch. 548 of 2025). In addition to preventing discrimination against those without access to banking or credit, this law helps save consumers money by lowering costs and eliminating hidden fees.
